Pool issue heats up in council meeting

By Stuart Adams

Accusations of stalling the movement toward building an indoor swimming pool came forth at Thursday's meeting of Drayton Valley town council.

In a heated statement Councillor Alex Salfi accused members of town council of stalling the resolution of the issue and delaying and possibly jeopardizing the project.

His statements came following a point-by-point criticism by Councillor Charlie Miner of a motion to accept a recreation board recommendation to remove restrictions on the impending plebiscite which will decide whether or not the swimming pool will be built. At the July 28 meeting of council a motion by Mayor Bob Mayhew was passed moving that a plebiscite be held on the pool but limiting the eligibility of the voters to those whose names appear on the tax rolls as landowners.

"I am getting sick and tired of the stalling tactics of this council," said Salfi. "I am getting tired because I feel this voting on this issue is going to become the stalling tactic to this council not handling it [the swimming pool issue].

"In other words what we're doing is we're going to give it to some other council to handle and they'll have to start from page one."

He went on to say that everyone should get a vote on the matter because the result will affect the entire community.

"I think that either we grapple with the situation now or if you want to continue your stalling tactics then defeat this motion and then let's say that this council is totally incompetent of handling the issue of the swimming pool," he concluded.

"Pretty strong words, Mr. Salfi," Mayor Bob Mayhew commented before suggesting Salfi "stick to the issue."

"I'm saying that you've stalled this before," retorted Salfi.

Mayhew defended himself by saying he was the one who brought the motion to vote on the swimming pool before council.

The seven-point statement presented by recreation board Chairman Larry Fetterolh was the start of the conflict. Following Fetterolh's presentation Councillor Miner spoke on each point.

He disagreed with the recreation board's reasoning that because the $330,000 coming from the Multi-Cultural Resources grant is based on the entire town population then the entire voting population should be eligible. The total population

Closing of nominations draws near

By Joe Poirier

With nomination day set for Monday, Sept. 19, returning officers throughout the province are preparing for another election.

Drayton Valley's returning officer is Bob Dykes and this will be his second election in this position.

All returning officers are appointed by town or city council.

Dykes explained his chores concisely.

"The returning officers have to run the election."

Dykes explained the actual nomination time is two hours Sept. 19 from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. and all names are held for 24 hours in case of withdrawals.

Dykes will be working with more than just municipal elections. He will have to work with school board and separate school board trustee nominations.

Drayton Valley residents will be able to vote at the Elks Hall from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Oct. 17 and returning officers and appointed deputies must make sure booths and registration desks are ready.

Guidelines for Dykes are drawn up in the 1983 Local Authorities Election Act which will not be drastically different than the manual used in the last election.

Should anyone wish to have their name stand for election five of their peers from the area must sign for the candidacy. A deposit will not be necessary for nominees.

County nominations can be given in Stony Plain County office. Returning officer in the County of Parkland will be Al Shenfield. Drayton Valley is in division seven of the county and in the last election Maurice McCullagh won by acclamation.

High school readying to honor its graduates

By Jack Morrison

Come Sept. 24, 140 graduates from Frank Maddock High School will parade across the stage to receive the recognition of completing 12 years of school.

"We always have a fall graduation," said Brenda Prentice, advisor on the graduation committee.

With a fall graduation only the people who have really graduated will receive the recognition, she said.

The students have a tendency to treat the ceremony with more respect than a spring graduation, said Ritchie Woods, principal.

As well it is kind of like a homecoming, he added.

With a fall graduation students do not have to waste precious time finding escorts, buying corsages and arranging for gowns during exam time.

Woods estimated over 90 per cent of the graduating students return for the ceremonies.

Unlike other high schools the students will receive with their congratulatory handshake a FMHS diploma neatly encased in a leatherette binder, not a program of the evening's events.

Plans for the ceremony start with an Air Cadets color party. The Air Cadets will break colors while everyone sings O'Canada. This ceremony has a special significance this year, he said. Along with unveiling the Canadian flag and the Alberta flag a new school flag donated by the graduates of 1983 will bis unveiled.

The school flag was designed by Kelly Ochner in a 1980 student contest, he added.

The theme of graduation this year is Know Who You Are, said Prentice.

A total of four scholarships will be presented during the ceremonies, she said.

The scholarships include the Slim White memorial award, the Masonic Scholarship and a Student Union scholarship.

The Slim White memorial award, sponsored by Pembina Resources Ltd., consists of two scholarships of $500 awarded to a male and female based on need, scholastic standings and plans to attend a post secondary institution, said Woods.

The $200 Masonic award will be presented to a person based on the criteria of citizenship and scholastic standings.

The Student Union scholarship will be given to a student who has done quite a bit for the school, he added.

Dignitaries on hand during the graduation ceremonies will include members of the school board, MLA Shirley Cripps and Mayor Bob Mayhew. Tim Yakimec, a former teacher, will give the address to the students, said Woods.

The ceremonies start at 2 p.m., followed by a banquet and dance.

of the town includes "the two kids I have at home," who aren't old enough to vote.

In response to the suggestion that since $330,000 of the total monies will also come from the town coffers all residents should be eligible, Miner said that the taxpayers who put the money in the coffers will be the ones to vote.

Miner also disagreed with the suggestion that the senior citizens who have sold their property to reside in such places as the Shangri-La Lodge and Wishing Well Apartments deserve a vote. His reasoning was that although they contributed time and money to the community in the past the taxes on the pool will be for the present and the future.

He used similar reasoning to reject the vote for the "15 to 30-year-olds" who will "no doubt be the taxpayers of tomorrow", saying that the town as it exists is funded and supported by the property owners.

In reference to the actual name on the tax roll including only one spouse he suggested that the vote be worked out as a family matter.

The recreation board claimed that with a strong user fee structure the operating deficits for an indoor pool would only be marginally different than what is now being incurred with the present facility.

Miner rejected this statement and the last one that rents are set to reflect taxes.

Councillor Howard Olsen used his closing comments on the motion to support Miner's criticism of the motion.

Councillor Jim Wolff wholeheartedly supported the recreation board motion saying a decision has to be made quickly and the entire voting population should be involved in the action.

With Councillor Ken Koskinen absent, Councillors Miner, Olsen and Mayor Mayhew voted against the motion and Councillors Wolff and Salfi in favor.

Traffic lights delayed

New traffic lights installed in Drayton Valley at the corners of 50th St. and 52nd Ave. and 50th Ave. and 54th St. will be flashing until Sept. 19.

Lem Myerau of M.W. Electric said the lights will be fully operational at about 11 a.m. and the tentative date will be Sept. 19.

Vehicles driving up to the lights will trip the electro-magnetic field and change the lights automatically. Conversely, if there isn't any traffic the lights won't change at all.

Bank offer on Kantrak rejected by council

Citing future costs, Drayton Valley town council rejected a lump sum offer of $50,000 Thursday, to lift caveats registered to ensure placement of approximately $190,000 worth of off-site levies on the property formerly owned by Kantrak Developments.

Municipal Planning Commission member Councillor Charlie Miner informed council that the local branch of the Royal Bank had made the offer following the reception of two bids from "solid and stable contractors to purchase the development" which would then complete work on the buildings.

Miner listed a series of "pros" in favor of accepting the bank's offer. He explained completion of the development would enhance the area, provide additional tax revenue, remove a hazard and remove the expenditure of funds to demolish the buildings and sue Kantrak.

On the 'con' side he brought to light the eventuality of further development of Deby Road on the south side of the development. "What that means is that if we accept this settlement then when the time comes to build Deby Road then the town must pay," he explained.

"I'm not prepared to settle for $50,000 and the removal of all our demands."

Mayor Bob Mayhew noted that it is within the town's right to have the development demolished and Councillor Alex Salfi added the Royal Bank would lose much less money if it were sold than destroyed.

Miner said he felt that the Royal Bank was trying to "get out from under this debt load" and that they were trying for concessions. He added that the town shouldn't have to furnish those concessions.

"My motion is to reject the offer they have made — if we do there is the possibility that we may get nothing out of that," he said. "But I think that's a chance we have to take."

Council will delay a decision on a clean-up order until the Sept. 29 meeting to allow further negotiation with the Royal Bank.

Disciplining of mayor called for

By Stuart Adams

Two committee-of-the-whole meetings have been held since Thursday's Drayton Valley town council meeting to discuss allegations of harassment of a town employee by Mayor Bob Mayhew.

The meetings came as a result of a prepared statement at the close of Thursday's meeting when Councillor Alex Salfi demanded a public apology from the mayor for "what I can only describe as a kangaroo court" where a town employee was brought before the Sept. 8 meeting of the transportation committee meeting and disciplined for "supposedly voicing his personal opinions in public."

Salfi also claimed the mayor intimidated the employee and told him his job was in jeopardy.

Mayhew did not respond to the charge in the council meeting but later denied threatening the employee's position. "I said if there were concerns he should come tell us about them," he added.

Salfi also expressed his concern because he claimed this sort of incident had occurred in the past.

It was his feeling that any disciplining of staff should be done through the town manager and a personnel committee if necessary.

Because of the closed nature of the committee-of-the-whole meetings the results of the meetings will not be known until the next town council meeting Sept. 28.

Opinions

Town council is making a mistake

The further rejection by town council of the rights of almost one-third of the voting population of Drayton Valley is irresponsible.

The recreation board, a group of unpaid volunteers representing the interests of the community, approached council with a recommendation to include the entire voting population in the plebiscite to decide on whether or not a swimming pool will be built. Their collective voice was ignored by council in a flagrant disregard for the wishes of the community as a whole.

What would the result be if this policy is allowed to stand? A dangerous precedent will be set, one which could divide the community.

If the non-landowners are not allowed to vote on this issue then why should they be allowed to vote on any other money issues? Town council has demonstrated that it is unwilling to make a decision when a major money bylaw is to be decided upon, so it appears we can expect more plebiscites in the future.

By disallowing voting rights to a third of the population, effectively declaring them 'persona non grata', a segment of the population will be alienated from anything of a community nature.

Why should someone who is not allowed to vote work to support a community in which he has no say in the ultimate operation? There will be no incentive for a potential volunteer to give of himself for the good of the community when he is not taken into consideration when important decisions must be made.

For the good of the community the general voting populace must be allowed to participate in the vote.

Everyone needs to upgrade

In this fast-paced society of ours we often need to upgrade our education, especially with the advent of computers.

Both Pembina Education Consortium and Powerhouse Further Education Council offer courses to those who wish to take advantage of them.

Powerhouse will be offering between 30 and 40 classes during the fall session.

With the continuing influence of computers in our lives Powerhouse is offering a computer literacy course. The course is designed to teach people how to use a language called Basic to program a computer. The consortium is offering a new course this fall to teach businessmen considering purchasing a computer whether or not it will be cost effective for their business.

Other courses offered by Powerhouse include Body Awareness and Relaxation, gourmet cooking and at Christmas a course on making Christmas goodies.

For people who want to add or update their education the Pembina Education Consortium is offering a variety of college and university courses right in Drayton Valley.

The consortium has hired two full-time instructors to run two new courses to be offered for the fall session.

The courses are a business certificate course and a clerk typist course. The business certificate course is being offered in conjunction with Grant MacEwan College in Edmonton and the clerk typist course is offered in conjunction with the Alberta Vocational Center.

One important thing to be pointed out is both instructors for both courses have been hired by the Consortium and will be living in Drayton Valley.

Bicycles come under traffic rules

Believe it or not, bicycle riders are governed by the same laws of the road as vehicle drivers.

Pleading ignorance of the law will not save the victim of an accident just because he or she was riding on the wrong side of the road.

Section 143 of the Highway Traffic Act defines a bicycle as any cycle propelled by human power on which a person may ride, regardless of the number of wheels it has.

Not only does a bicycle rider have to follow the same rules and regulations as does a driver but there are a few special rules.

Any person operating a cycle on the highway must keep both hands on the handlebars except when making a signal. As well the rider must keep both feet on the pedals and must not ride other than on or astride the regular seat of the cycle.

Breaking these rules and the rule of not doubling as it is commonly referred to could cost the rider a summons leading to a specified fine of five dollars.

Children and adults alike often ride on the wrong side of the road. Some perhaps feel it is safer so that driver may see them coming or have a phobia of vehicles coming up behind them. If caught, like a vehicle driver they could be given a $25 ticket.

Return of the Raven

Ace's View
from the water tower

It was a dark and stormy night.

After a watchful day on the water tower old Ace was a wee bit bushed and had hit the roost early. Little did he know as he dropped off to the sound of rain pelting the dome of the water tower that his very life was in danger.

Up through the drizzle and the blackness crept a team of desperate ruffians bent on only one thing. With all sounds muffled by the wind and the rain they made their way to Drayton Valley's highest point and then succeeded in making off with the goods -- your correspondent.

Yes, dear readers, Ace has just been through a harrowing experience which has kept him from these pages for the past several months. Folks, he was kidnapped by as nefarious a group of scurilious individuals as ever swiped a bird.

For those of you who were wondering where he's been the true story can now be revealed. Following extensive negotiations and the exchange of certain bits of valuable information and a not inconsiderable amount of goods his freedom was obtained.

(Editor's note: Not wanting to mislead our readers we feel we should explain that the negotiations may be deemed extensive only because we lost the 'drop-off' address and had to wait for the birdnappers to re-establish contact; also, at a later point my holidays interferred at a crucial phase in the planning stages. There were several difficulties surrounding the payment of the ransom and it may as well be known that we had balked at but finally agreed to a 75 per cent shared cost of the feed bill for our feathered scribe. We also gave them Wayne Greizhi's home phone number (obtained from the Yellow Pages under 'Celebrities') and a platter of carrot cake from the local bakery.)

So, Ace is back on his perch but this week he's going to save some of the space until next time around and hit only a couple of highlights.

Everybody knows about the election coming up and Ace wonders if anyone other than the Amoco crew have noticed it will be held on the anniversary of last year's blowout.

Ace hopes this isn't an omen -- think of all the sour gas spewed by the well and does this mean we'll have to put up with the same from our town council?

Shiver his timbers. After all, how would it look if we had to call in Boots and Coots to cap a town council meeting?

And from other reports there have been enough sparks coming out of the council meetings lately to set a gas well on fire.

"Blowout in council chambers", can you see it on the front page? Ace bets there'd be some hot feet over that one but then it wouldn't be the first time.

And, speaking of elections, it reaches his ears that there's a third party considering running for mayor. Election promises should be coming out soon, so Ace promises (ho,ho) to keep you informed.

Dear Editor:

Thanks to your paper for giving us in Drayton Valley an unbiased view of the news. You have excellent photographers and reporters and local news to me is important.

Frank Maddock High School has a fine new music room, as well as a technical room for welding and a beauty parlor.

To me the new plans are fantastic. Fall classes are under way for young and old and help us to gain a new and positive outlook on life. Every day is important and every job constructive, no matter how menial that job might seem to be.

New teacher helps students

Besides new students entering the school system this year Drayton Valley has a few new teachers.

Kathy Schaefer will be instructing students in the Opportunity Room at Elementary B.

The opportunity room has been designed for students who need special help in math, social studies, science and language arts, she said. The students will spend time working on those subjects with her and the rest of the time in their home room, she added.

Schaefer is originally from Calgary and received her Bachelor of Education (BEd) from the University of Alberta.

This is her first year teaching and she hopes to advance the students as they are working at a higher level.

New to Elementary B, but not to students who attended Eldorado Elementary, are Brenda Cavanagh, Darlene Harris and Rob Christopherson.

FMHS gets vocational instructors

The new vocational wing along with new programs to offer students has added a number of new teachers to the staff of Frank Maddock High School.

Like automotives, building construction, welding and beauty culture, the new music room all have new teachers.

Blair Proctor, a Grande Prairie native, will be spending his school hours instructing students from Grades 7 to 12 in the art of music.

"I think it (the music room) has to be one of the best in the province for a public school," he said, commenting on the new facilities.

Proctor says he is married with "2.99 children."

Steve Hall, a University of Alberta graduate, will be instructing the welding classes.

Like Proctor, Hall also praised the new welding shop, saying "It is about the best equipped shop I've seen."

Besides welding, Hall will teach some automotive classes.

Wayne Donner, originally from the Carvel area, will be teaching automotives 32 this semester and both 22 and 32 next semester.

The only new female teacher at Frank Maddock High School is Rita Daley. Rita will be teaching three beauty culture classes this semester in the 12 level.

Originally from the Camrose area, Daley received her teaching certificate from the University of Alberta.

Lavern Kundert, the veteran of the group, has lived near Breton for the last four years, managing a feedlot.

Unlike the other new teachers, Kundert will be teaching chemistry 10, 20 and 30, along with Social Studies 13 and English 13.

Kundert taught in Medicine Hat for nine years.

Three nuns teach at St. Anthony School.

Three sisters at St. Anthony

By Jon Poirier

St. Anthony's Separate School teachers and students are welcoming two additions to the staff. They are Sisters Camille Campbell and Margie Gillis from Nova Scotia.

The two arrived about a month ago to join Sister Katherine (K.T.) MacDonald in community work and Catholic instruction.

Sister Margie will be instructing the Grade 4 students while Sister Camille instructs the Grade 8 and 9 levels and Sister Katherine works with the junior high school students.

"We'll be working in the parish life as well as teaching," Sister Campbell said.

Sister Katherine, who has been here three years, welcomed the two new teachers.

"After the few days of orientation they'll find themselves in the education system," Sister Katherine said. "In a few weeks they'll be part of St. Anthony's and it'll be hard to realize they weren't here for the last few years."

The nuns feel they are going back to the real roots of their ministry.

"We've always played the role of education," Sister Camille said.

"We'll be teaching that the students should have the presence of God since he was created in the image of God," Sister Gillis said. "God loves them (the student) and it'll reflect in his life as a Christian."

Besides teaching the Catholic nuns are involved with nursing, social work and pastoral ministry in Alberta.

The three nuns are the only three in Drayton Valley and they feel accepted within the community.

"Students are the same universal," Sister Campbell said. "We're very happy to be here and privileged to carry on work here."

Sewer line repair alleviates backup problem

By Jon Poirier

Sewer lines installed by the town in the 42nd Ave. area have been repaired by Camden of Edmonton for an estimated $10,000 to $15,000, Manjeet Saran, town engineer, said.

The repairs were made between Aug. 22 and Sept. 6 after sewage backed up in residential water supply a second time.

The first time the sewers backed up was about a year ago and the town flushed the lines constantly to alter the problem.

While the repairs to the lines were being made some entrances to residential areas were blocked off.

Accesses were kept reasonably clear and in good condition but in construction "you can't keep it perfect," Saran said.

The work was done by a company in Edmonton "because coring had to be done" under the pipelines, Saran said.

Powerlines near the sewer pipes had to be altered before the pipe was completed.

Schwindt to teach home economics courses at H.W. Pickup

New to H.W. Pickup Junior High School this year is Susan Schwindt. Schwindt has taught for two years. The courses she will be teaching include personal living skills, money management, sewing and clothing areas as well as food and nutrition skills.

Most of the classes she will be teaching will be co-ed, she said.

Hilda Schultz, typing teacher, was unavailable for comment.

Susan Schwindt will be teaching Home Economics.

Diane Lynch

Eldorado Elementary has two new teachers this year.

"I have been looking forward to this since student teaching two years ago," said Diane Lynch, opportunity room and challenge room teacher.

Originally from Edmonton, Lynch hopes to learn more about herself and see the progress her students make during the year.

Audrey Fagervold is the other new teacher at Eldorado Elementary. Fagervold was transferred from Lodgepole School and will be teaching Grade 1.

Panthers surprise league

Paul Vickers thwarts another pass.

Saints and Panthers sit on top of the Pembina Flag Football League.

Panthers have been pulling out surprising upsets in the early going of the season, defeating the two top teams from last year.

Panthers started the season with a 7-6 win over Saints then tripped the Brewers 10-9 Sept. 7.

Saints have rallied from their first loss and have now outscored their opposition 51-13. The second place team shut out Brewers 26-0 Monday and sunk Crude 19-7 Sept. 6.

Brewers gained their only win of the season on a 16-0 drubbing of the last place Crude.

Both Crude and Panthers play tonight at Frank Maddock High School at 8:30 p.m.

In other games next week Brewers play Crude Monday and Saints play Panthers Wednesday.

Marauders aid Ceasars' hunt for first place

The Drayton Valley Ceasars should thank Whitecourt Marauders for their continued support in the Ceasars' pursuit of first place in the Central Alberta Rural Towns Soccer League.

Marauders helped keep Stony Plain off the Ceasars' tail with a 1-0 victory in Whitecourt Sunday while Drayton Valley travelled to Mayerthorpe for a 5-1 triumph.

Stony Plain was beginning to get dangerously close to the Ceasars in the league standings as they moved a point ahead of the Ceasars, who had a game in hand Saturday.

Ceasars are tied with the Marauders for first with a game in hand on Whitecourt going into Wednesday's game in Spruce Grove. A win against Spruce Grove and Whitecourt Sunday will give Ceasars sole possession of the first place trophies awarded every year. A tie or loss Wednesday would drop Ceasars into third while a win Wednesday and a tie Sunday would give them second spot.

Nonetheless, it all takes the attention away from the three-goal performance by Peter Kelepouris and the two-goal performance from Andy Kelly Sunday.

Ceasars mishandled their rivals to the north with ease as Les Hewlett assisted on no less than three goals including the opener in the first half to Kelly.

In the second half the game was under Ceasars' control and Mayerthorpe's ability to field only 10 men found the home team tiring.

Mayerthorpe scored their only goal on a neat shot in Simon Kelly's open corner of the net from about 15 yards out.

By this time Ceasars were already ahead 3-1 and the goalkeeper's brother had notched the game winning marker.

In other games Spruce Grove surprised Hinton 2-1.

Plan now for recreation course registration

It looks to be one of the highlights of the season for recreation enthusiasts.

Registration night has been billed as a two-day affair where teams and associations gather to get the residents of the area exposed to the different programs available at Centennial Arena.

Friday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon will offer registration for Cubs, Scouts, Beavers, Air Cadets, Aerobics, Gymnastics, Judo, Drayton Valley Presents, Arts Council, Figure Skating, Guides, Brownies, Pathfinders, Curling Club (men's, women's and mixed leagues), Powerhouse Programs, Highland Dancing, Karate, Gung Fu, Kickboxing, Youth Sports Night, Drayton Valley Players and Ceramics Club.

Drayton Valley Curling Club is accepting bookings for men's, women's and mixed teams both days. The club hopes to have tournaments for many of the weekends during the season including oilmen's, ladies' and mixed.

There will be no age limits and fees will be handled during registration.

Drayton Valley Figure Skating Club will be taking on a new face lift this season for participants four years (by Feb. 28, 1984).

Can Figure Skate is a recreational skating program with the normal test dates but the Can Skate will enable the instructors to award badges on merit at the instructor's discretion. The skaters (usually at a younger age than the others) will be learning at their own pace; a less formal training.

Fall courses offered this fall include many of the popular programs offered before. Calligraphy, computer literacy for adult beginners, paper tole (with an introduction to feathering), body awareness and relaxation through gentle exercise, parenting in the '80s, communication and discipline, Christmas goodies workshop and write break (for those who wish to learn how to deal with literacy in reading and writing). Write break will offer education for those who wish to learn to read the newspaper, cope with handling savings and cost-comparing in shopping. More volunteers are welcome in this program.

Life skills will be taught to those in their early 20s and late teens. One to one tutoring is possible for those who want it while open class concept will be introduced if necessary.

Fembina Boxing Association is scheduled to be at registration night. Two clubs (one in Drayton Valley and the other in Violet Grove) will be teaching the basics of boxing as well as promoting sportsmanship. The clubs are affiliated with the Alberta Amateur Boxing Association and all boxing equipment will be supplied.

Gymnastic club set to resume

The Drayton Valley Gymnastics Club has decided to make some major changes for the 1983-84 year. The club conducted a survey of parents at the end of the 1982-83 year.

As a result, the club will try to encourage students to become more goal-oriented in badge achievement, to improve communications with parents and students on skill level achievement, to have a more competitive emphasis for students with exceptional gymnastic ability and to improve the quality of coaching.

For the first time, a special boys' session will be offered Wednesday evenings. Paul Machure, who has a rich background in competitive gymnastics with the University of Alberta Golden Bears, has been appointed head coach of the boys' division. Boys ages six and up at all levels of experience are eligible for these classes.

The second major change involves the establishment of a permanent gymnastics facility. Renovations are presently under way to convert the band building located on the H.W. Pickup School site into a recreation facility for gymnastics and judo.

Several rooms are being eliminated to make room for gymnastics equipment and to add space for floor exercises. This will allow the club to set up equipment on a permanent basis and to offer two full hours of gymnastic instruction per session.

Six two-hour sessions are being offered Monday through Thursday with special Saturday lessons featuring guest instructors for competitive and pre-competitive classes. The present facility will accommodate 25 gymnasts per session.

The year will be divided up into three periods of instruction with 20 hours of instruction per period. The first period will run from Oct. 3 to Dec. 9, the second session from Jan. 9 to March 16 and the third session from March 26 to June 1.

Students ready for sports season

St. Anthony boys are working hard in volleyball.

Soccer is popular at Elementary B.

FMHS girls are on the ball.

By Joe Fairier

No sooner do the teachers and students get ready for another season of learning they get prepared for another season of competition in sports.

H.W. Pickup Junior High School has begun their volleyball program. Al Day will be coaching the senior boys' team while Darlene Negraiff coaches the senior girls. Tom Hutton will be coaching the junior girls and Wayne Rosell will be coaching the junior boys.

Other programs will include track and field, badminton, cross-country running, tug-of-war and intramural play as well as inter-school play.

St. Anthony School has also begun their volleyball program with Principal Ron Williams coaching junior girls, Rita Steele will coach the senior girls, Wayne Tourneur will coach senior boys and Linda Thompson will coach junior boys.

The other sports programs for the junior high school students will be similar to those of H.W. Pickup.

Frank Maddock High School students can look forward to volleyball with Gord Tucker coaching the boys, Carl Passe coaching the girls.

Dave Schwindt will be behind the girls' basketball team bench but he is looking for volunteers to guide the boys' team. Basketball will follow volleyball at the end of the fall season about October.

Curling, badminton, gymnastics and possibly wrestling will be offered to the students if there is enough interest. Soccer teams will be guided by Simon Kelly this spring.

Last but not least in the competitive field are the staff and students at Elementary B. With a spirit that rivals many schools in Drayton Valley "The B's" will be preparing for soccer, flag football, Newcomb (a form of soccer and baseball mixed together), floor hockey, Nel ball (a form of basketball), Canada Fitness and track and field.

House leagues include Cougars (teachers), Jaguars, Bobcats, Cheetahs and Panthers. These house league teams and competitions stress participation. Points are awarded for turnout and achievement.

H.W. Pickup is getting into shape the aerobics way.

Vegetable storage information in book

Anyone who plans to store his or her vegetables this winter and who has not stored vegetables before, will find the following information, compiled by Paul Ragan of the Alberta Horticultural Research Center in Brooks, quite useful.

The first thing to remember is to harvest the vegetables during the coolest part of the day, which is usually in the early morning. Because they contain less field heat at this time, they will not heat up the storage area.

Carrots, beets, parsnips and rutabagas should all be stored at a temperature that is as close to zero degrees Celcius as possible and at a high relative humidity. They can be put into perforated plastic bags or into garbage bags that have been perforated to keep the humidity high or they can be buried in moist sand or slightly moistened vermiculite.

Parsnips can even be left in the ground all winter and dug the following spring, providing that they are well mulched with straw or leaves.

Finally, never store apples or pears with vegetables because they give off a chemical that may reduce the quality of the vegetables and may even cause them to spoil.

Gymnastic club revamping

Gymnasts can register for any or all of the three sessions. The registration fee is $1.50 per hour of instruction or $30 per session.

Some changes have been made to improve the quality of instruction. Coaches will receive a salary based on hours of instruction and level of qualifications. They will be assisted in attending Level I coaches' clinic and workshops to improve technique and teaching skills.

A qualified head coach will be available for each session, assisted by several assistant coaches. The goal of the club is to have a five to one ratio of gymnasts to coaches with volunteer parent spotters to assist in the beams and uneven bars.

The club is planning to increase the emphasis on competition. Gymnasts in the recreation levels may attend up to six mini-meets this year. In addition the club is attempting to hire a head coach for the Levels B and C competitive and pre-competitive groups.

The club is aiming to make this a building year leading up to a higher level of competition for the 1984-85 year. If there are any inquiries about the club or if anyone wishes to become a coach or spotter they can contact President Lawrence Cooper at 542-4187.

Tournament scheduled

Drayton Valley will host its first mixed slow pitch tournament of the season this weekend.

More than 14 teams from Drayton Valley and area will participate at Lions Park.

Organizers say it will be one of the largest tournaments held in Drayton Valley.

Registrations were open at press time and anyone wishing to enter a team may contact Dave Sluchinsky or Mike Koebernick.

Teams entered include Bankers, RCMP and representatives from both the ladies and men's fastball teams.

Run goes Sept. 18

By Joe Poirier

Terry Fox will long be remembered as one of Canada's heroes.

Drayton Valley will have a chance to contribute to his cause Sept. 18 as the town does its part in the country's fight against cancer.

This year's 10 km challenge will take place in town and start at Drayton Valley's pool in Rotary Park.

It is hoped more than two per cent of the population participates this year as only 1.95 per cent took the bulk of the load to raise about $6,855,21. About 90 runners earned close to $60 each.

The Marathon of Hope people are now asking residents of Canada to continue their support.

Cancer has been beaten a number of times and it is through participation from this international event that the disease can be avoided or cured.

The run will start at 1 p.m. and pledge sheets may be obtained from the town recreation office, schools and The Western Review.

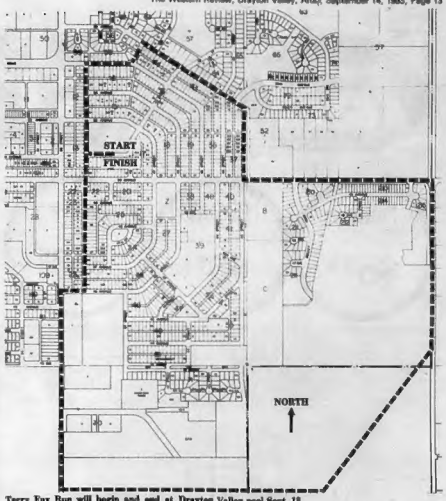
Volunteers are needed at the registration desk while others are needed to hand out refreshments.

The drop-off centre will be at the Royal Bank and certificates will be available to all participants.

Ray Duperrow has finished first each time in the last two years but not everyone has to run to get involved. Organizers are asking everyone to participate in every way they can either by sponsoring or walking, jogging, cycling and rollerskating.

Applications must be accounted for so an accurate total may be recorded.

Last year 125 Alberta communities raised more than $595,000. The National Cancer Institute has committed $26.2 million to the studies on the genetics of cancer, palliative care, breast screening and other worthwhile programs. A neurocology research group has been established at the University of Alberta.



Terry Fox Run will begin and end at Drayton Valley pool Sept. 18.

Breton business

New product improves gravel road drainage

By David Hedley

BRETON—It doesn't look like the Tasmanian Devil.

But an innovative piece of road maintenance equipment operating just outside Breton Wednesday churns up gravel, dirt and grass in the same manner as the television cartoon character with the vicious disposition.

The machine is an Excavator and two men from the Breton area are promoting the new-to-Canada product as a way of improving gravel road drainage and recovering gravel from roadside ditches.

"If you keep the water off the roads, you keep the roads in good shape," says Arnold Rasmussen, a long-time businessman, heavy equipment operator and part owner in the venture.

"A road's drainage system needs maintenance, just like everything else."

Rasmussen and his partner, Norm Jackson, say the giant, hydraulically-controlled rotor does a more efficient job than existing equipment to scrape shoulders clean and free trapped water.

The two started thinking about introducing the machines to the Canadian market after spotting a photograph in a trade magazine.

The idea moved a step closer to reality when Rasmussen attended a trade fair in France, where the Excavators are manufactured.

After acquiring rights as the sole dealer for western Canada, the partners approached the federal government for permission to waive import taxes.

Since no Canadian company builds a comparable product, no duty is charged, says Rasmussen.

"To get anything into this country duty free, it's got to be different," he says.

The red tape taken care of, the imported equipment arrived at its destination about two weeks ago.

Jackson and Rasmussen were demonstrating its capabilities Wednesday on Secondary Road 616 near Breton, in connection with a road upgrading project taking place nearby.

Their task now is to sell the machines in the four western provinces by proving their value to potential buyers: municipalities, oil companies and private individuals.

"We think either each county needs one or two machines or there is room for contractors to do this kind of work," says Rasmussen.

County of Leduc councillors are among those already shown the rotor.

"There's been a lot of interest," he says. "At this point it's just a matter of showing everybody what it can do."

Arnold Rasmussen, Norm Jackson and their imported 'Tasmanian Devil.'

Towed by a hydrostatic drive tractor, the unit travels slowly along the edge of the road, with the four-foot diameter rotor extending outward and downward into the ditch.

It leaves behind a clean, even downslope and spits the chewed-up gravel, dirt and grass up to 100 feet back across the road.

Unlike the conventional practice of using a Gradeall or backhoe, the rotor leaves behind no lumps or bumps.

"The shining feature is there's no appreciable build-up of dirt right beside the ditch. It's scattered for up to 100 feet."

"You don't have the problem of getting rid of the dirt after you've dug the ditch."

The shredded mixture may consist of as much as 55 per cent clay, but Rasmussen says the dirt doesn't harm the road.

"Basically, all it'll do, in my estimation, is glue the gravel down. I don't think that's a bad feature at all."

An accumulation of grass and gravel on road shoulders over the years is normal, but the job of cleaning it effectively and quickly is difficult for grader operators, says Rasmussen.

"I think you'll find the ditch grows about an inch a year. You've got to clean it once in a while, you've got to clean it just to keep your drainage."

A big advantage of this system is the amount of gravel salvaged, he points out. The machine recovered an estimated 400 yards of gravel per mile on SR 616 east of Breton, he says. "Any way you look at it, that is a minimum of $4,000 worth of gravel."

Besides being used in shoulder cleaning, the Excavator can be used to dig ordinary ditches. One of the first assignments was a ditch cut across a farmer's field. At about 24 inches deep, 36 inches wide and a half-mile long, the ditch was dug in 2½ hours and cost the landowner about $250, Rasmussen says.

The model imported this summer is worth about $45,000, he says.

Machine interests Leduc County Council

The business end of the machine: a four-foot rotor.

An interested Leduc County council Wednesday voted to conduct further tests of the Excarotor now being used on a temporary basis at a road upgrading project near Breton.

And the machine is winning praise from at least one county councillor.

Division 6 Councillor Gene Begg Wednesday called the ditching machine an "excellent" piece of equipment and said he hoped it could be put to increased use in the county.

The biggest advantage is the smooth mixture left on the road behind the machine, he said.

Existing clean-up methods leave behind clumps of dirt and grass that can take up to a month to disappear, said Begg.

Fellow councillors are interested in the capabilities of the machine but don't appear ready to outright purchase one, at least, not yet.

"They're not convinced we would run it on a steady basis for our employees to run," he said.

County Reeve Miller steps down

By Richard McGuire

Parkland County Reeve Les Miller will not be seeking re-election in October.

Miller announced Monday that he is stepping out of county politics "to serve in another capacity" which he won't disclose for about a month.

"It's the toughest decision I have made in my life," Miller said in an interview. "I am going to miss it a great deal."

Miller has served on council 17 years—14 of those as reeve.

"I really feel I have to make a change now while I've got the opportunity or stay on council until I am 65," Miller says.

Because the reeve is elected by council at the organizational meeting following a municipal election, there is no indication who Miller's replacement will be.

Miller says he is aware of new contenders for his division two seat—Ed Wilson and George Sewell. He says he is making his announcement now to allow others to contest his old seat. He expects still to be involved in county affairs and says he'll visit council and keep in touch.

"I've always been active in the community," says Miller.

During his time on council, Miller has seen Parkland grow from a municipal district of about 9,000 people to a county of 29,000. Parkland became a county in 1969.

"What I am really proud of during my time we've built up the industrial tax base to a very high level," says Miller, adding that even though some industry was lost to Edmonton in annexation, there is still a solid industrial base.

Miller says he would have liked to be around in 1985 when the county goes on a new assessment system. Council must maintain parity on taxes under the new system.

"The county is in good shape and will have a good council regardless of who is elected," says Miller, adding that he expects most of the present council to be returned.

Library stars counted

By Lois Peterson
Librarian

The library's summer reading and activities program kept many readers and hobbyists busy during the summer. Final count showed 1,088 stars in the gigantic galaxy, which represents a lot of reading and sticking!

No one guessed the exact number of stars but the closest guesses in each category were children's Kelly Jackson (1,022), juniors Shaunna Mallett (1,050) and family Carlos Cartwright (1,025).

The library is back on its regular schedule. Watch for a special event at the library Oct. 8.

COUNTY OF PARKLAND NO. 31

PUBLIC NOTICE
BY-LAW NO. 44-83
ATTENTION
Electors of the County of Parkland No. 31

The Council of the County of Parkland No. 31 intends to carry out the following under the 1983 Building Quality Restoration Program at the estimated costs as shown:

1. Sebo Beach School -Replace Furnace - Room No. 5	$13,094
2. H.W. Pickup School - Drayton Valley - upgrade structural components - replace floor.	$73,529
3. Stony Plain Junior High -Time Clock for exhaust fans and 2 sets of vestibule doors	$ 3,600
4. Queen Street School, Spruce Grove - Energy conservation upgrading	$ 5,300
5. Eldorado School, Drayton Valley - Replace roofing (1955 section)	$124,000
6. Queen Street School - Replace roofing - (1953, 1956 and 1960 sections)	$110, 977
TOTAL COST	$330,500
Less Outright Grant	$ 50,000
Balance Required	$280,500

In order to carry out this project the Council intends to apply to the Local Authorities Board for authority to borrow an estimated $280,500.

Of that estimated amount, $197,379 is proposed to be paid from the School Foundation Program Fund. The Council tentatively will have to repay $83,121 by way of debentures repayable in 15 consecutive annual instalments with interest at the rate as determined from time to time by the Alberta Municipal Financing Corporation. The actual division of costs between the School Foundation Program Fund and the Council will be determined within three years from the time of acceptance of tenders or other schemes of construction.

If you do not agree that the Council should borrow this amount, you may petition for a vote in accordance with the provisions of sections 2, 3, and 113 of The School Act.

The petition must be signed by at least,

(a) 2 percent of the electors in a district or division having 10,000 electors or more, or

(b) 5 percent of the electors in a district or division having less than 10,000 but 5,000 electors or more, or

It's good to be back, she says

Arikelle Schneider likes to learn.
[photo by Jack Morrison]

Student-at Random

Even though she dislikes the bus ride, nine-year-old Arikelle Schneider is glad to be back in school.

Arikelle says she is the last one to get on the bus in the morning and the first one to get off in the evening but the only problem with this arrangement is she usually does not get a place to sit.

"I really like learning things," said the Grade 3 student.

Her favorite part of school is working with words and numbers.

Arikelle says she spent most of the summer riding her horse, Tora and feeding and watering the 13 rabbits the family has.

Right now she is responsible for caring for five baby chicks which were born about six weeks ago.

"They are still fuzzy and are starting to get their feathers," she said.

"They are in my mom's bedroom on a heating pad," she added.

She says once in a while she takes them out for a scratch in her mother's flowerbed to the disgruntlement of her mother.

When the chicks manage to escape from the heating pad Arikelle says she is the one who gets to clean up the mess.

When not cleaning up after the chicks, riding her horse or feeding the rabbits, she likes to read "long, thick" books.

Drayton Valley

a growing community providing the meeting place for town and country

Offering a commercial centre, churches of several denominations, professional services, and recreational facilities. Drayton Valley is located in the heart of the Pembina Oilfield - the largest, in area, in the world and now producing a large amount of Canada's oil supply from more than 4,000 wells. Besides the large producing oil companies, the town is headquarters for a large number of subsidiary oil field firms performing a variety of services (Windlines, Perforating and Cementing Firms, Hot Oil Units, Service Rigs, Construction and Transport). Several sawmills operate in the heavily timbered area surrounding Drayton Valley.

Serving a trading area population of 24,000 in 26 communities. A member of the CCNA and AWNA, published Wednesday of each week, we focus on the community of Drayton Valley and surrounding area. Offering a rubber stamp ordering service.

Town to upgrade water system

Almost $2 million will be spent over the next year as the first part a three-year project to upgrade the town of Drayton Valley's water supply system.

Total cost of the project will be $4.3 million with the town picking up $1.9 million as its share and the provincial government covering the rest of the expenses

Of prime importance will be a $420,000 distribution main which will service the new hospital when it comes on stream some time in late 1983 or early 1984. This work is expected to be completed by November.

Also included in the first year package are a 800,000-gallon reservoir and a new pumping station. Over the next two years the balance of the project will be completed by the construction of a new 14-inch supply line, upgrading of the raw in take system and a 10-inch distribution main.

He said the most important part of the site selection and ultimate decision will be dependent on the operating costs of the pool.

The Hire-A-Student program was a success during its second year in Drayton Valley with twice as many placements as over the first year, Councillor Alex Salfi gave verbal report on the summer activities of the agency operated on the town's behalf by Becky Heitsmann.

"There's no doubt the Hire-A-Student program has been greatly improved since last year," he said, citing 120 placements in 1983 as opposed to 61 in 1982.

"I believe she did a tremendous job this year and I find it gratifying that the community supported the program."

Councillor Charlie Miner echoed Salfi's praise and added that he had heard "nothing but good reports."

More information needed on pool site

Drayton Valley town council decided it needed more information before choosing a site for the proposed indoor swimming pool.

Following a presentation at its Thursday meeting by Camrec Consultants outlining the two best sites for swimming pools, they requested the company to return to the Sept. 28 meeting with concrete figures concerning the operation of each of the facilities.

Presented were structures to be built in either Rotary Park, between the existing pool and the Scout Hall or in the parking lot next to the Centennial Arena. Both would contain 25-metre, four-lane pools with attached wading areas; each would be built for $1.4 million.

Camrec President George Naoum said initial rough figures indicate the facility could be operated year-round at a deficit of $85,000. He also expressed surprise at the extent of use of the present outdoor pool but attributed part of the high user rate to the low, average age of the town and the number of children

Executive looking into the matter

Legion cancels giant cash bingo

By Jack Morrison

Internal conflict is one of the possible reasons why the $10,000 bingo sponsored by the Royal Canadian Legion was cancelled.

The reason why the bingo was cancelled, speculated Ralph Whitney, chairman of the bingo committee, "was because I quit."

"I feel really bad after setting it up," he said, referring to the cancellation.

Roy Costen, president of the Legion, when contacted Monday, refused to comment on the situation, saying "The matter is still being looked into."

The "Giant $10,000 Cash Bingo," as it was labelled, was to have run this Saturday in the Centennial Arena. All proceeds from the bingo were to have been donated to the Drayton Valley Indoor Swimming Pool fund.

Professionals (Western Bingo Supplies) from Edmonton who were running the bingo estimated it would have brought in approximately $18,000, said Whitney.

Western Bingo Supplies runs things like this for small communities. The only money they would receive from the bingo would be the cost of supplies which would be approximately $3,000, he added.

Another reason why the bingo was cancelled, he speculated, was the Legion thought a new vehicle was going to be given away and they might lose money.

When setting up the bingo he says he told the executive the prize would either be a new vehicle or cash.

"I couldn't get a new vehicle delivered in time," he added.

One of the reasons why he quit his four-year position on the bingo committee was the Legion would not allow non-members to sell tickets, he said.

"It (quitting) has been creeping up for a while. "I was left in control all by myself," he added.

Because he got little help from Legion members he took up offers from ladies in the audience, he said.

"Even though I had no time, I still made time to do bingo," said Whitney, who has just set up a new business.

Whitney says if he were to have been asked to carry on and run the $10,000 bingo, he would have.

Residents to make a movie with ACCESS

The residents of Shangri-La Lodge will soon become movie stars.

The concept behind the production being filmed by ACCESS is to show how residents of lodges may keep active both physically and mentally, said Jeannette Vatter, member of the board of Shangri-La Lodge.

The project is still basically in the concept stage with the script yet to be written by ACCESS.

The total cost of the project is $40,000 and ACCESS has come up with $30,000, leaving Vatter and the board to come up with the other $10,000.

The board applied for a $10,000 federal grant from New Horizons and although the money has not come it is expected soon.

Compared to most lodges Vatter feels "we have more than average activity."

Some lodges are like institutions and do not have entertainment or crafts for their residents, she said.

"This is not doing much for the people stuck in the lodge."

If they have various activities they will stay healthy, she added.

Plans for the finished product will be to show other boards and matrons a typical day's activities.

Vatter hopes to take the videotape to a matron's convention being held in June, 1984.

The videotape could also be used as an informational tool for people thinking of entering a lodge, she added.

The residents of Shangri-La are currently in the process of polling other lodges in hope of discovering some hidden qualities they may have which could be used in the production.

Filming will hopefully start in November, she said.

TransAlta opens new electrical power plant

By David Berezowski

"More power is needed to stimulate the economy's growth," the president of TransAlta said last week at the official opening of the Keephills generating plant.

Marshall Williams said electricity is the basis of such economic growth. When asked whether there wasn't already an over supply of power, he replied that the demand for electricity in Alberta is continuing to grow "at a rate that is higher than the rest of the country."

The new plant now has one electrical generating unit that is in operation. Unit II, the second electrical generating unit, is scheduled to begin operation next year.

The two units each have the capability of producing 377,000 net kilowatts of power.

Williams said there are no plans for adding more generating units to the plant, although he suggested such expansion could take place once the economy improves.

When asked about Alberta's need for nuclear power in the future, Williams said the province's coal reserves push that need far into the next century and forecasts are in the "area of speculation."

Williams also noted that the plant's funds were raised at a time when interest rates were at their highest.

During the plant's peak construction there were 1,200 people employed. The building of the plant took seven years at a cost of over $650 million.

The eventual usage of both generating units means the 10 400 tonnes of coal will be consumed daily.

The added coal consumption will push the annual production of the Highvale Mine, the largest coal mine in Canada, to about 12 million tonnes.

The new plant is the third TransAlta coal-fired plant in the Lake Wabamun area. Together with the Sundance and Wabamun plants the total kilowatt output will be over three million kilowatts.

The increased mine production means another 110 people will be required at Highvale by 1985, while the plant will have 87 permanent employees.

Williams said the site of the plant is ideal because of its "low cost coal reserves ... ample cooling water ... and its proximity to major load centres."

The power at the plant is produced through the burning of pulverised coal at high temperatures which then turns water into steam. Electric current is produced when the steam rotates blades which are attached to a turbine shaft.

Postal corporation still a problem

By Stan Schellenberger, MP

In October, 1981 the post office became a Crown Corporation and recently Canada Post Corporation published their fifth performance report.

In the report, it stated that on-time delivery for combined first class mail was 89 per cent compared with 88 per cent for June, 1982 and 80 per cent in June, 1981

I feel the post office has a long way to go to provide Canadians with an efficient, affordable and equitable mail service at a reasonable cost. It is disturbing to think that the sum of $680 million of taxpayers' money went to the Crown Corporation in 1982 to assist it in its operation.

There are basically three concerns I have with the Canada Post Corporation. The first would be the monopoly aspects of the postal corporation; the second would be the reduction of services we are experiencing; and the third would be the lack of adequate facilities in many parts of our riding.

Dealing first with the monopoly aspects of the Corporation, we know that in the past there was a historical justification for this monopoly, simply because no one wanted to deliver the mail. Today there is no longer that justification. Private firms can provide the service and there have been changes in technology that open all sorts of horizons for the delivery of mail.

Suddenly we are finding that private firms and other organizations can be competitive with the postal service in both price and service. The result of that is that the post office is now feeling a little threatened, so rather than look to improving the service and competitiveness it has moved to expand its monopoly.

It did that in the area of redefining a letter, with a definition that was broad and sweeping. What we found with that definition was that anything that could be sent was classified as mail.

The second area of concern is reduction of service. There has been a steady deterioration of service, especially in rural Canada. There is no Saturday delivery and there is no postal stations open on Saturday. There also has been talk about layoffs of post office staff and there has been discussions about reducing letter carrier routes and even the closure of some small post offices throughout the country.

The third is facilities. Not only do we have areas without delivery, which complicates things because it creates long waiting lines in the post offices but on top of that we find that many postal stations are in poor state of repair with little room, shortage of staff and so on. All of this is being provided by a Crown Corporation that wants to guarantee that all Canadians have access to a basic level of service

To top everything off we have price increases. The price of a stamp has gone up from 17 cents to 32 cents over four years. That is more than a 25 per cent a year increase

Since the Canada Post Corporation has been formed a survey has been done among small businesses with regard to the postal service in Canada. It involved about 9,000 businesses. Approximately 56 per cent thought there was no improvement with the new corporation, 34 per cent thought that the situation was the same and two per cent thought service was improved. Therefore there is still a lot of work to do, certainly in terms of service and facilities.

Chemical available to fight sprouts

The little green sprouts coming up on residential lawns have caused a spate of phone calls to the town office.

Because the town does not have the staff or the time to apply a herbicide called Roundup, it has made the chemical available to residents free, said Dennis Woolsey, recreation director.

The sprouts or suckers, from poplar trees, is the result of the tree trying to reproduce, said Doug Walkey, district agriculturist.

The suckers grow from a node on the root of the tree and eventually become autonomous, he said.

The town has cut down 120 trees at a cost of $10,000 to alleviate problems such as sewers clogging, roots breaking up sidewalks and roads.

When the trees were cut down the stumps were treated with a solution of 2-4-D and diesel fuel, said Woolsey.

The poplars were all located on boulevards owned by the town. Each poplar could have roots one and a half times the height of the tree. The chemical mixture applied to the stumps only penetrates approximately three metres from the base of the trunk, he said.

"The town feels somewhat responsible, so they have agreed to purchase the Roundup and make it available to residents if they want to apply it," he added

Roundup is a general herbicide and will kill trees nicely, said Walkey. But it needs about a week to work, he added.

The chemical must be applied to each individual sucker, advised Woolsey.

If the chemical was sprayed it would destroy most of the vegetation it came in contact with, said Walkey.

House plans and advice available

By Janice McGregor
542-5365

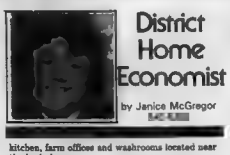
Designing and furnishing a blue print size house plan is one of the services offered to rural consumers by Alberta Agriculture.

Many farm families have requested this design service and been satisfied with the results.

The service is only a design. Working drawings, specifications and contracts for home builders are not supplied. The services of a draftsman may be required to draw in plumbing, wiring and other specifications. These are called working drawings and may cost 25 to 30 cents per square foot.

Farm families can do much of the preliminary work themselves. A good place to start is to fill in a fact sheet.

The book, Low Energy Home Designs, has approximately 20 home plans with varying sizes, shapes and design features. All are designed for farm living and feature large back entryways and kitchen, farm offices and washrooms located near the back door.



During the initial planning phase, I will be available to clients requesting assistance on siting, exterior design, floor plan and traffic flow as well as help on choosing finishing materials such as drapes and carpeting.

This book also has an entire section devoted to energy saving building tips, siting and construction details. It is worthwhile requesting this book for some advance study.

Families should visit show homes, lumber yards and suppliers to check out new materials, costs, colors and design trends.

Pamphlets, floor plans and other information are available free of charge. However, it is helpful to know that original floor plans take up to six weeks to complete so they are sent to Alberta Agriculture's Home Design Lab in Edmonton. Any of the plans in the Low Energy plan book can be sent out in less than a week.

New duties for firefighters

By Joe Poirier

Evansburg's volunteer fire department will be busier now that Improvement District 14 officials signed a fire protection agreement.

Although Julian Kostak, Municipal Affairs minister, must sign the document before it is instituted, the signature is a formality and the ID fire truck should be in the village by Jan. 1, 1984.

Both the fire chief, John Lauer and deputy Chief Howard Walker agree the contract will mean more work for the volunteer fire department in Evansburg since they will be answering calls in the east half of the ID. Lauer insists Evansburg residents will not be in danger if a call were to come from the village at the same time.

"We will be able to call," Lauer said. "I feel it is a good thing for the ID to have a truck going."

Lauer explained Wildwood fire department will be servicing the west half of the ID under their agreement and that the new agreement will mean fewer losses.

"The fire fighting equipment has doubled in the ID and the agreement has cut the area in half."

With the larger area to cover the fire department is asking residents to consider joining the volunteer fire department more than ever.

"We won't ever take everyone out to a fire," Walker said. "That way the fire protection in both areas won't be jeopardized."

Buck Lake ball players labor all weekend

By LeOpal Larmon
385-2128

A ball tournament organized by Lawrence Mackinaw was held at the Buck Lake recreation grounds during the Labor Day weekend. The Rocky Rams from Rocky Mountain House took first prize, Mackinaw Buck Lakers received second place while third prize went to the Benalto Steelers.

Other teams included the Edmonton Tom Cats, the Montana Ranchers from Hobbema, the Onoway Colts and a team from Edson.

Jim Syvertson and Sharon from Quesnel, B.C., were here recently to see his uncle Jans Bakasa and his cousin Joyce and Norman Ingiis.

Sympathy is extended to Betty Rigby and her family in the death of Stan Rigby.

Sympathy is also extended to Dianna and Gary Hammond in the death of her father Albert Gallaugher in Wetaskiwin.

Ruby Woods hosted an evening farewell for Pat Terrabain with the Minnehik Ladies' Friendly Circle. The Terrabains have moved to Rimbey where Alex is employed.

Tom, Vicki, Billy and Gail Dunn spent two weeks travelling through Jasper, Quesnel, Barkerville, Williams Lake, Shuswap and home via the Rogers Pass.

Weed controls may continue into fall

Weed control is traditionally associated with spring and summer but fall is also a good time for this occupation, says Walter Yarish of Alberta Agriculture's weed control branch.

Following is a list of some of the main weeds that can be controlled at this time of the year.

- Winter annuals and biennials such as stinkweed, flixweed and scentless chamomile in both stubble and summerfallowed fields.
- Narrow - leaved hawk's-beard in newly seeded alfalfa fields and other broad-leaved weeds and grasses in established alfalfa fields.
- Perennial weeds such as Canada thistle, perennial sow thistle and quack grass on cultivated land but more specifically in areas that are difficult to approach during the growing season.

Since the advantages of fall weed control vary from one district to another because of cropping patterns and climatic and soil conditions, Yarish suggests checking proposed fall weed control programs with local district agriculturists.

Wildwood hosts hot game

By Joe Poirier

Bingo is the hottest game in town and no less than four Wildwood community groups cash in on the wealth spent in a week.

Wildwood takes great pride in its bingos and even more pride in the enthusiasm the event generates throughout the area.

One name synonymous with bingo in the Wildwood area is Caroline Russell who calls the games as often as she can. Russell took over the regular chore after an illness forced Hazel Wis field to give up her duties. Winfield still manages to call a few cards but the weight, about three games per weekend — 60 cards worth of responsibility, has been passed on to Russell.

Bingo participants are a special group of people who are more than just punctual.

"Some of the players are in by 5 p.m. for an 8 p.m. game," Russell said. "The people in this area support all the bingos."

Most of the "regulars" are old pros and can be spotted a mile away. These are the people with the game cards memorized, the magnetic markers, ink stampers and an eye and voice for a sure bingo. Some of the players place down their money and gather about 20 cards per call.

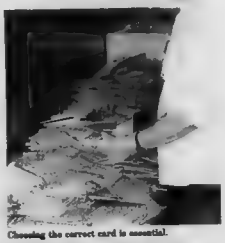
"That's the person I watch," Russell said. "When that person is finished marking I figure everyone should be done."

The folks don't start the game with just any card. Every card is scrutinized and selected with each individual's taste or logic (sometimes luck too).

The players who win and lose in these games know what is involved in the crazy V, the inside corners, four corners, straight lines, outside lines and of course the ever-popular full house.

As the games continue the voices of aggravation grow louder. The beads begin to wag more and the shouts of "I only needed..." become the rage all over the room.

The bingo rooms become warmer with each passing game and the game becomes heated — or is this the writer's imagination?



Choosing the correct card is essential.

Some play about 20 cards.

Flashboard is popular in Wildwood.

Caroline Russell calls a card.

All bingos are checked against the board.

Butterfly good exercise for knees and thighs

By Linda Giroux

I often notice a striking similarity between the age-old yoga postures and other new exercise methods.

The butterfly is a yoga warm-up which usually is done in preparation for the knee and thigh stretch. It can be done seated or lying down.

For the butterfly exercise, sit with the back straight, bend the knees and place the soles of the feet together, allowing the knees to fall to the sides. In a flexible person the knees should come to within three inches of the floor. Gently bounce the knees up and down 50 to 100 times.

For the lying down version, lie on the back with the soles of the feet together and the heels as close to the body as possible. Let the knees fall to the sides. Allow the force of gravity to work to bring your knees to the floor. A mild stretching should be felt in the groin area and along the inner thigh. Relax in the posture for one minute, then stretch the legs out straight and repeat.

Once warmed up with the butterfly exercises, go on to the knee and thigh stretch. Sit erect with the knees bent and the soles of the feet together. Bring the heels up against the perinium.

Grasp the toes and pull up on the toes while attempting to bring the knees to the floor. Hold for 10 or more seconds, relax and repeat. The knees may easily touch the floor or they may be far from the floor, depending upon your degree of flexibility. The more difficult the posture is the more you are in need of the benefits, so persist.

Funding of key importance to municipalities

Municipal governments throughout Alberta will either have to cut back in the service they provide to their electors or else put the bite on property owners for more money, unless better ways can be found of funding local programs with financial help from the province, according to AUMA (Alberta Urban Municipalities Association).

"Local governments are unanimous in this option," says George Cuff, president of the AUMA.

The AUMA is one of three associations which have presented a joint brief to Municipal Affairs Minister Julian Koziak, seeking more equitable funding from the province. The other two associations are the Alberta Association of Improvement Districts and the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts and Counties.

Singled out for special attention in the three associations' brief to the minister is the matter of funding for schools. It recommends "that the government of Alberta assume full responsibility for the School Foundation Program Fund financing."

"The AUMA wishes to make it clear to everyone that we are not on record as criticizing local school boards," says AUMA President Cuff.

"We recognize they are doing their best to provide educational services at a reasonable cost. What we are suggesting is that an inordinate burden is being placed on the property taxpayers compared to what was originally envisioned."

The province should continue to raise funds for education by taxing commercial and industrial properties, the committee says and should then turn these funds over to municipalities without strings attached.

The three-association committee points out school authorities at the municipal level are calling for ever-increasing "supplementary requisitions" to be raised through local property taxes.

Over the past several years provincial support has dropped as a percentage of total education costs and at the same time the percentage of these costs which have been covered through property taxes have increased from a low of 25 per cent to more than 50 per cent in many instances. This has resulted in municipalities having to cut back in municipal operations.

It is being recommended the province undertake to cover education costs so at least a municipality will in no case have to put more than 33 per cent of its "consolidated municipal tax levy" into meeting the demands for school supplementary requisitions.

In the overall provincial grants scene, municipalities are asking the provinces to simplify and consolidate its grant programs and to allow local autonomy in determining how the money is to be spent.

"The AUMA recognizes the provincial government's right to provide 'conditional transfers' for those programs which it believes are essential base-level programs (for example, library service)," says President Cuff.

"What we are saying is that nitty-gritty decisions such as a choice between funding hockey or baseball should be made at the local level. We are also saying that where possible those kinds of minor or less significant grant programs should be consolidated."

Finally, the committee recommends two major factors which should be fundamental to a simplified formula of funding for municipalities: a per capita grant and a resource equalization grant based on assessment deficiency as compared to the provincial average.

The AUMA brief suggests that "implementation studies should be started immediately to reform the existing grant system with an emphasis on improved local autonomy, better liaison between the provincial and municipal levels regarding grant programs and more timely announcement of grants to the municipalities."

Hints on protecting garden plants outlined

Garden plants can be protected with paper or blankets against frost for a day or two but the paper or blankets should be removed each day by mid-morning. Plastic will not provide any protection.

Another way to protect plants against a light frost is to turn on the sprinkler just before sunrise but care must be taken not to oversaturate the soil, particularly if this method of protection is used over a period of several days. Even though the plants are covered with ice, they will not sustain injury if they are allowed to thaw out slowly.

Vine vegetables are the most susceptible of any of the vegetables to frost injury. They will be severely injured or killed if the temperature drops to almost zero degrees Celsius. Only the mature fruit on these plants can sustain one or two degrees of frost without being injured.

Tomato, egg and pepper plants are slightly more tolerant of frost than vine plants. When the frost is light, damage is usually confined to the upper portion of the plants. Of this group of plants, peppers are the most frost tolerant. They will survive two to three degrees of frost.

A light frost will injure sweet corn, but the cobs will still be usable. In fact, they can be left on the plant as long as any part of it is alive.

Most leafy vegetables can tolerate two or three degrees of frost but Swiss chard and spinach can tolerate up to five degrees.

Cole crops such as cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli and Brussels sprouts are tolerant of frost and their flavor is reported to actually improve with exposure to some frost. However, it is possible for their flavor to become so strong that it is no longer palatable.

Apart from onions, root crops can tolerate the highest amount of frost of all vegetables because their edible parts are below the ground. In fact, they can remain in the ground as long as the soil does not begin to freeze. Onions, on the other hand, should be harvest as soon as it starts to [illegible]

In the event of a frost of more than five degrees or a snowfall, vegetables that are salvagable should be left in the garden until the temperature warms up and allows them to thaw out slowly. The worst thing to do would be to take them indoors and thaw them out quickly.

The above information comes from an Alberta Agriculture publication entitled Home Vegetable Gardening in Alberta, which, in addition to containing information on growing vegetables, tells how to store them, how to winterize the garden and what vegetables can be seeded in the fall.

Home Vegetable Gardening in Alberta (Agdex 250/30-3) can be obtained from district agriculturists or by writing to the Publications Office, Alberta Agriculture, J.G. O'Donoghue Building, 7000-113 St., Edmonton, Alta. T6H 5T6.

To the Electors of Division 5
I have decided to place my name before you in the forthcoming election, to be held Oct. 17/83. Country of Parkland No. 31. My reason for doing so comes from the fact I believe that Municipal Councils and School Boards will have to face some tough and difficult decisions in the next few years, and I would like to offer the electors of Division 5 the benefit of my past experience

Notice Of Civil Action

To: Darrel Haight

The Plaintiff issued a Statement of Claim numbered 8303074B5 in the Office of the Clerk of the Court Queen's Bench of Alberta at Edmonton, on June 30th, 1983 A.D. The Plaintiff's Solicitor is Linda M. Pason of Smith Gawinski Perkett Pason & Ortmuie 2420, 10025 Jasper Avenue Edmonton, Alberta.

The Plaintiff claims against you the following: (a) A declaration as to amount owing under a Mortgage entered into by yourself and the Plaintiff and in default of payment, sale or foreclosure and possession; (b) An Order for Possession respecting those mortgaged lands; (c) An Order shortening the redemption period; (d) Cost of this action; (e) Such other and further relief as the Court deems fit.

The grounds on which the action is founded are stated in the Statement of Claim, a copy of which will be mailed to you upon request to the Plaintiff's Solicitor. If you wish to oppose the action, you should immediately file in the Office of the Clerk of the Court, Law Courts, Edmonton, Alberta, a Statement of Defence or instruct your lawyer to do so. If within 20 days of the publication you fail to file a Statement of Defence the Plaintiff may proceed accordingly to the practice of the Court, to obtain judgement against you in your absence. Your whereabouts being unknown, the Court ordered substitutional service upon you by this advertisement.

Cake worth the task of pitting the berries

By Linda Gibson

The chokecherry is a small tree found in open woods, along the edges of fields and along streambanks.

The leaves are egg-shaped or oval with a sharp point. They are two to four inches long, smooth on both sides, dull green above and paler green below, with finely toothed edges.

The blossoms are born in long clusters. The deep purple berries ripen in late August. Each berry has one large stone.

The twigs and bark of the chokecherry are covered with a dull greyish film which is poisonous.

Chokecherries played an important part in the diet of early settlers and can be eaten raw as a survival food. They can be made into jelly or pancake syrup.

The berries are too small to be pitted with a cherry pitter, so removing the stones is a lengthy job which leaves the fingers stained brown. Chokecherry cake, however, is well worth the effort of pitting the fruit.

Chokecherry Cake

Ingredients: 4 eggs; 1½ cups milk; ½ cup flour; ¼ cup sugar; 8 cups pitted chokecherries; confectioners' sugar.

Preheat the oven to 375 degrees. Beat together eggs and milk. Add the flour and then the sugar, a little at a time. Mix well until a smooth, creamy batter is formed.

Grease a six-cup baking dish and spread the cherries on the bottom. Pour in the batter and bake 1½ hours. Dust with confectioners' sugar and serve warm or cold with vanilla sauce.

Vanilla Sauce

Ingredients: ¼ cup sugar; 1 Tbsp. cornstarch; ¼ tsp. salt; 2 egg yolks; 2 cups light cream; 1 tsp. vanilla.

In a saucepan mix together sugar, cornstarch and salt. Beat the egg yolks and cream together. Pour into the sugar mixture, stirring constantly. Cook over low heat until smooth and creamy but do not boil.

Taurians have week of good luck

We are in second quarter and increasing and the moon is in the sociable sign of Sagittarius. Travel or begin new studies and ride horseback.

Sept. 15 to 17 we will be in the goat's sign of Capricorn as well as in second quarter and still increasing.

This is the time we hope to have our goats bred.

Have eyes tested or get new glasses.

Invest money in property or put it into savings. Either way it will increase in time like the moon.

Breads and cakes will rise well at this time.

Sept. 18 and 19 we will be in Aquarius. This is a time to enjoy. Party and travel. Join a new group. Visit and share your deeper thoughts about the future or your concerns about animal welfare.

Cut your hair to increase its thickness.

Excavation of all sorts is favored so dig that new toilet hole in readiness for winter or excavate and lay foundations.

Sept. 20 to 22 we will be in the escapists' sign of Pisces and full moon occurs Sept. 22 to boot.

Can fruits and vegetables or put up sauerkraut.

Anyone with money problems should ask for a loan now. Buy on a credit card with confidence.

Whose lucky week is it?

Until Sept. 22 the luckiest folks are Taurus born between April 29 and May 5. The number to remember is nine.

A Farm Wife's Almanac

by Joanne Benger

Important days this week

Sept. 14, 1752 Great Britain and its colonies adopted the Gregorian calendar and decreed that following Sept. 2 would be Sept. 14

In Roman Catholic countries the Gregorian calendar wasn't accepted until 1582 and that year contains no dates between Oct. 4 and 14.

Sept. 17 is Yom Kippur.

Chapin takes first

By Dorothy Gervais

Dwayne Chapin won first place Sept. 2 in the junior division of the fiddlers' contest held at the Red Barn. He took part in the fiddlers' jamboree at Lakedell Sept. 3 where he was presented with a plaque for being the youngest participant.

The Ellis family have been busy with entries in various fairs in the area. They competed recently at Alder Flats, Drayton Valley and Lakedell. Dana and Trisha O'Hearn and Elan Reade also had entries in local fairs.

Grace Guevin of Spruce Grove was a recent overnight guest at the Ray Ellis home.

After summer recess, the Breton United Church Sunday School has started with classes at 11 a.m. in the basement while the regular service is in session upstairs.

School is in full swing again with the teachers remaining the same with the exception of Tom Gray who was transferred to another school in the county.

Potatoes need careful harvesting

Because potatoes react poorly to rough handling, the bags or containers used to transport them during harvest time from the garden or field to the storage area should be handled carefully. Dr. Ieuan Evans of Alberta Agriculture recommends handling them almost as carefully as a bag of apples or tomatoes.

He also says that if polyethylene bags or garbage bags are used to transport the potatoes, they should be left open to allow for air circulation unless they are perforated. He does not recommend storing the potatoes in these bags.

• Harvest them when their tops have died back or been killed by a frost and when the soil has cooled down, usually between the middle of September and early October. This will give the potatoes as much time as possible to mature. Immature potatoes are more prone than those that are mature to bruising and skinning, both of which make them much more susceptible to storage rot.

• Dig the potatoes on a dull day. Even a short period of exposure to the sun may cause sunburn or greening. To avoid greening, do not leave the potatoes lying on the ground even on a cloudy day or exposed to artificial light for any longer than is necessary. Apart from giving them a bitter taste, greening, which is caused by an increase in the potato's glycoalkaloid content, can be toxic.

• Always harvest potatoes when the temperature is above freezing. Those that are subjected to even a few degrees of frost will break down completely and rot.

• Keep the storage temperature at about five degrees Celsius. If it falls to near the freezing mark, the potatoes will develop internal blackening and if it goes too high and the ventilation is poor, the potatoes will smother from lack of oxygen

Residents return from summer holidays

By LaOpal Larsson
388-2122

Lil Lerouxx spent five weeks this summer holidaying with her family. She began at Champion, where she visited with her daughter Sue Tangen and family.

She took her granddaughter, Shavonne and went to Ontario to visit with her son David and family and her sisters, Irene and Julie.

Joey, Guy and Vic Miller were home from Bonnyville for the Labor Day weekend.

Rudy and Vera Braun took about 10 days from their farm work and toured through Jasper, Lake Louise and Fairmont. They returned to Alberta via the Crowsnest Pass. At High River they joined the celebration of Arnold and Marie Jones's 25th wedding anniversary. Rudy and Vera's children all joined them near High River.

Sympathy is extended to the Fontaine families in the death of Joe Fontaine Aug. 22. Funeral service was held Aug. 26 at the Wetaskiwin Senior Citizens' Centre.

Ann and Earl Johnson of Grande Prairie were recent guests of her sister, Adeline and Victor Miller.

Bob and Helen Armstrong of Bentley have purchased the Roy White place.

Sympathy is extended to the family and friends of Edna Krysta who died Aug. 29 at the age of 47 years. She is survived by her husband Willie, one son, five daughters, her father, two sisters and three brothers. Funeral service was held Sept. 2 at the Buck Lake Hall with interment in Rimbey.

Jenny Porter, Rose Alcock, Ivy VanCord, Ivan Pfaff, Judy Miller, Judy Inglis, Chad Chaffee, Betty Bohning, Vera Braun, Pauline Molyneax, Debbie Bartman, Horst Brunsch, Wendell Johnstone, Geneva Patten, Angela McLean, Ricky Siegel and Jarvis Jeffcott all celebrate birthdays in September.

Wilfred and Goldie Anderson, Pat and Sandra Bohning, Shannon and Terry McKay, Ernie and Iva Kramer, Howard and Karen Bettamini and Melvin and Karen Becker celebrate wedding anniversaries in September.

First doctor in town

Dr. Brooks dies at 84

By Edith Deby
542-5481

Dr. Theodore Brooks, Drayton Valley's first resident doctor, died Sept. 1 in White Rock, B.C., at the age of 84.

He is survived by four sons, Andrew, Peter, John and Keith, one daughter, Susan and one grandchild, Shawn. A sister, Mary Sturton, lives in Bedford, England. There are still people here who have vivid recollections of Dr. Brooks and his incredible stamina.

He arrived here with his family in 1954 when the oil boom had hit in full force. His home and office was in a skid shack in the trailer court north of the hotel. Since there was no hospital the Brooks station wagon was often pressed into use as an ambulance.

In 1956 relief came in the person of Dr. Hugh Maclure. The two doctors continued in practice together until 1961. The latter moved to establish a practice in Sherwood Park.

Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Maclure spent the weekend with Paul and Audrey and their family.

Dr. and Mrs. Maclure are again making their home in Enderby but do short stints in developing countries. In recent times they have been twice to Africa and are thinking of South America next although which country has not yet been decided.

Local coal could make difference

By Grant Notley, M.L.A

If you were a national policy maker and someone presented to you an idea that would simultaneously create jobs for more than 32,000 people, cut about $1 billion a year off Canada's balance of payments deficit and contribute substantially to the solution of the acid rain problem in eastern Canada, wouldn't you be interested?

Such an idea exists. It was released recently by myself, the Alberta NDP's Energy Critic Davis Swan and the president of District No. 18 of the United Mine Workers of America, Michael Tanzem.

In a nutshell, we proposed that, instead of importing about 16 million tonnes of coal a year from the United States, the electric utilities and steel industries of Ontario secure that coal from western Canada (primarily Alberta and British Columbia).

The effects of implementing this proposal would be huge.

To mine the extra 16 million tonnes a year (which may rise to 27 million tonnes by the year 2000) would require the employment of more than 32,000 mineworkers and workers in the various support services.

It would cut roughly $1 billion per year spent in buying this coal from the United States to near zero.

It would, of course, substantially reduce unemployment insurance and social assistance payouts, while increasing personal and corporate income tax revenues.

And because western Canadian coal has a much lower sulphur content than the American coal imported into Ontario, acid-rain-causing sulphur emissions from Ontario's plants would be greatly reduced.

But as is always the case with good ideas, this one can't be implemented without some effort.

The two major hurdles to be overcome are an existing rail transportation system from the west to the east that is not now capable of handling the increased traffic; and the need for a transportation subsidy to get western coal to central Canadian markets at competitive rates.

This is why a truly national outlook and a truly national policy are required. The benefits of the proposal are obvious. But western Canada and western Canadian coal mining in particular, would benefit from the proposal more than would eastern Canada.

Eastern Canada has benefitted for more than a decade from the national policy of holding oil prices to 75 per cent of the world price—to the direct disadvantage of western Canada. Sir John A. Macdonald's famous National Policy benefitted central Canada directly, arguably at the direct expense of western Canada.

To explore the proposal more fully, the Alberta Legislature's Official Opposition and the United Mine Workers District No. 18 are co-hosting a conference on the proposal in Calgary Sept. 27. Over 180 groups and individuals, including the Coal Association of Canada and the Canadian Coalition on Acid Rain, have been invited to attend and participate.

Planche encouraging on petrochemicals

By Geoff White and Sheila Pratt

Economic Development Minister Hugh Planche has offered encouraging words for the province's petrochemical industry currently encountering tough competition in export markets.

Planche issued a statement recently saying the government remains committed to the industry, calling it one of the cornerstones of the province's industrial strategy.

But though Planche's comments were received favorably by petro-chemical executives, it remains to be seen what the province will actually do to help the industry out.

The latest blow to the industry came with a decision of the Energy Resources Conservation Board to allow a handful of natural gas producers to extract ethane from gas they produce.

Ethane is the basic building block of ethylene, one of the primary feedstocks for Alberta's petrochemical complex. The ERCB decision means that ethane will appear in more dilute quantities in the gas that feeds the petrochemical plants and it will therefore be more expensive to extract.

Much of Alberta's petrochemical production, which ranges from styrene to polyethylene to anti-freeze, is sold in the U.S. market. And the industry fears their markets will soon be taken over by American producers.

Although Planche tried to boost the confidence of the industry, many executives know that he fears taking any action that would ease its cost problems because of the chance of retaliation from the U.S.

Any measure that was seen to be specifically aimed at helping the petrochemical industry would result in actions by U.S. petrochemical firms to have "countervailing duties" erected against Alberta exports.

Planche has indicated that the government might consider some form of royalty relief on natural gas liquids. But if this would not offend U.S. producers because it applies not just to the petrochemical industry but to all gas liquids producers, it would also result in giving help where it is not needed.

The Lougheed government likes to point to the petrochemical industry as one of the best examples of economic diversification since it came to office 12 years ago.

It is not likely to abandon the industry at this point but it is still uncertain what it will do to help. A decision is expected by year's end.

Terry Fox Run draws all ages

By Jack Morrison

Residents at the Shangri-La Lodge Sunday were rocking to the beat of Terry Fox.

The 18 participants raised $635 in pledges after two and a half hours of rocking their chairs back and forth.

The unique idea was presented to the residents Wednesday night by Mary Ayotte, activities co-ordinator for the lodge.

"They had to really scramble to get organized," she said.

While the rockers were rocking in their rocking chairs they were being entertained by the Ted Cymbaluk and Family Band as well as Jerry Goertzen and Duane Kehl. The two bands alternated every half hour for a period of two hours, said Ayotte.

Most of the residents wanted to rock longer than the two and a half hours but due to meal hour restrictions there were forced to stop early, Ayotte said. Some wanted to rock anywhere from three to five hours, she added.

Elections set

By Joe Poirier

Eight people will be vying for five positions on Drayton Valley council election day, Oct. 17.

Bill Panluk, Claire Carefoot, Tom McGee, Peter Kasadeas, Ralph Whitney, Peter Jacobs and incumbents Charlie Miner, Harold Olson and Jim Wolff have allowed their names to stand for election.

Only Alex Salfi and Bob Mayhew have let their names stand for the mayor's position.

Eight names will stand for election of separate school board as well. Ernie Hasenclever, Elizabeth McGee, James Koehmstedt, Lorne Pinkoski, Mervin Pascia, Edward Trepblay, Jean Szatkowski and Paul Duckett have submitted their names for the upcoming election.

Similarly only names are up for the public school positions; Cecil Dawkins and Vi Hehn.

"It's always better to have a good variety in getting a councillor," Returning Officer Bob Dykes said. "It gives the people a selection."

The election will be held at the Elks Hall with the polls opening at 10 a.m. and closing at 8 p.m.

Evansburg-Entwistle hosting

Communities fired up by fair

Things will get a little hot at the Trade Fair planned by the Evansburg/Entwistle Chamber of Commerce, this Saturday.

The Evansburg Fire Department has planned to put on a demonstration, said Dan Crockett, president of the Chamber of Commerce. A car will be set ablaze and the members will extinguish it.

This is the first trade fair to be planned by the Chamber and the purpose of it is to see new products and services offered at competitive prices by local merchants, said Crockett.

Crockett says the organization planned for approximately 30 booths and now has 36. Because of its popularity they have had to split it up between Evansburg and Entwistle.

Half of the Trade Fair will be held in the Legion Hall and the other half in the Entwistle Curling Rink.

Transportation is available between the two villages, he said and the organization has made an effort to keep and even distribution of displays and booths.

Besides displays and booths featuring local merchants, groups and organizations will be putting on a number of displays outside. The Chamber has planned on having a merry-go-round and a log building demonstration.

Admission prices for the whole event will be $1 for adults (which gets them into both buildings) and children 12 and under get in free. The Trade Fair runs from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.
